Global Warming

Nowadays, global warming is an important problem. It is the gradual increase in the temperature of Earth. This situation can lead to some serious environmental problems in the near future.That is why, some people claim that it is the most significant and serious issue.On the other, the others support the idea that global warming is overrated. From my point of view, global warming is an important problem; however, I believe it is a bit overrated due to the media and some politicians.This essay examines global warming and what I think about this problem.

Firstly, global warming is one of the serious problems nowadays and I can agree with this idea. Nevertheless, I do not agree with the idea that it is the most significant problem these days. It is not an urgent problem. The world and people have various problems which seem more urgent. People in the world face several issues such as covid19, poverty, inequality,environmental problems like air pollution, etc.These problems seem more urgent to me.

Secondly, there is another reason why I disagree with this view. In my opinion, there is not enough evidence that global warming is an urgent problem. Some scientists claim that the greenhouse effect and stock farming(hayvancılık) lead to global warming. However, there are many other scientists and experts who disagree. Many prominent experts claim that global warming is not the cause of stock farming, or agriculture. They claim that global warming is overrated by the media, and I also agree with this view.

Consequently, as I have expressed my opinions with my reasons above, I disagree with the idea that global warming is the most significant problem which we face. All I can say is that global warming is a problem but not an urgent one.
